Dear Mr. Houston,

Although, in your last letter, you disclaimed responsibility for the private actions of the Agency's employees, I am still of the opinion, as expressed before, that A highly important Agency is responsible for obligations of every one of their employees, especially when neglect of such obligations is causing very painful suffering to two very old and sick people.

I am 75, the wife 10 years younger. I had a stroke which deprived me of my earnings and your employees took away the land for which they did not pay. The wife is sick now too and we are in need.

If you can not make your employees pay their just debts, kindly make them give us back the land which we deeded to them. They were supposed to have the land free of taxes and they should not make us pay for something that we did not get. That would be swindling.

For ordinary human reasons, we appeal to you to have these people give back to us the land without paying them something yet.

I am, sincerely,

de Bobula
